Communication: the imparting or exchanging of information or news.
How we communicate is also important. Sometimes it's easy to forget the basics of good communication in the heat of the moment, or simply because we get busy.

Recent events have reminded me that I need to brush up on some of those basic skills.

I found a good Bible Study by S. Gray at <https://sunshynegray.com/effective-communication/>

Some points she makes include the following:

Don't speak rashly (Proverbs 13:3). Speaking rashly literally means speaking without careful consideration of the consequences. Our words are powerful. James says our words are like a spark setting a forest ablaze. Our words have lasting consequences...

Don't speak harshly (Proverbs 12:18, 15:1). Harsh is defined as unpleasantly rough, cruel or severe. The words we speak should be chosen wisely. Harsh words are usually spoken out of anger but it does not yield the desired goal (James 1:20). This includes yelling; keep the volume in check. Also, avoid sarcasm-it's minimizing what the other person is saying. Proverbs 12:18 says our words can be reckless and pierce like a sword or bring healing.

Tell the truth in love (Ephesians 4:15). Sharing truth with someone is challenging, yet necessary. The only way to effectively share the truth is in love. Without love hearts harden. Delivering truth with harshness doesn't yield the desired goal. Love is like the packaging on the gift of truth - more readily received.
Strive for peace (Hebrews 12:14). Striving for peace does not equal withholding the truth. Rather it means we don't communicate with harshness, rashness, anger, etc. Instead we speak the truth in love and then entrust it to God. We tell the truth and God does the "heart" part.

Be gentle and patient (Ephesians 4:2).
Focus on the interests of others (Philippians 2:4). Self focus will rob you of living your purpose. It's not what you were made for. Not to mention it will steal your joy and peace. It's a constant state of demanding from a place of emptiness. The flip side of this coin is others focused. A constant state of giving from the overflow of love God pours into your heart. (Acts 20:35)
Remember your overall purpose (1 Corinthians 6:19-20). Our mission is to bring glory to God. This includes the way we communicate with one another. Doing communication God's way yields peace and joy."

I'll do my best to put these into practice. If I fail, then "tell me the truth in love"! Blessings!
