Seven Words:

Listening To Christ From The Cross

The most difficult part of Lent is, of course, contemplating our Savior on the cross: the physical pain, the humiliation, and the undeniable injustice.

Our hearts break. It's natural to try and avoid the reality of how Jesus died, but it is from the cross that Jesus shows his deepest love for us. As Jesus draws his final breath and utters his last words, it is then that his deep trust in the Father and his divine glory are revealed.

In Seven Words, Susan Robb looks at Christ's final words from a biblical and historical perspective, showing how we can find life and hope in them.

Laity, you're invited to one of four gatherings in March 2024.

While each gathering is directed to two districts, laity may attend any gathering in any region—and attend as many as you would like. Bishop Robin Dease will attend all four gatherings.

Registration cost is $20.

EASTER MORNING

Easter never fails to illumine our sometimes ordinary and mundane lives with an unparalleled light. The darkest hours of our lives are diminished by this extraordinary light and the HOPE that is so desperately needed in this world today once again gets renewed and amplified.

The darkest hours for our Lord were not just in the hours of his suffering but in the stone cold tomb that must have echoed a finality that had come all too soon.

Christina Rosetti, the great Victorian poet, in her poem "Easter Morning", so powerfully reflects upon the parallels with our own hours amongst the shadows cast by our brokenness:

*"To sinful man, if only he
His erring will confess with sorrow,
Then after earth's night misery,
Shall down a glorious morrow."*

Let loose from the bounds and shadows of his darkest hours, Christ had rose up ahead of us not allowing us to be confined in the dark shadows cast by our sins, but illumined beyond measure with EASTER light.

And so Rosetti reminds us,

*"A blissful bright eternity
Brought by the rising of the Giver,
To whom all praise, all honor be,
Forever and ever."*

Let this be for us all, and may Easter's light never fade!

*Grace and Peace,
Pastor Sonny Mason*

"Why do you seek the living among the dead? He is not here, but has risen."
